

From the EDITOR

Annual Begging

Everybody does it, I know, but nudging, begging, nagging... Well, I have never been very good at any of those. Still, every now and again I need to remind everyone that we exist thanks to the generosity of our contributors. Those are not contributions of money I'm talking about, but are much more important than that. We survive thanks to your willingness to share your ideas and creativity. There isn't anything we are not interested in — except, of course, hate discourse — and we consider everything we are sent. So why not become more than a reader? Become a participant. We have been doing this for fourteen years this year and every year has been a pleasure thanks to all of you.

Georgia Jones, Editor