

From the EDITOR

Near Death...

Well, not anymore.

I was. Over a three week period I have gone through some pretty dramatic medical problems.

I'm still weak but out of the woods and no permanent damage is expected. But my point is not how sick I was. It is how wonderful those of you who knew about it have been. It is always worth saying thank you to this group, both our writers and our readers, but when things get tough I am even more grateful for the people around me, their generous spirits, their offers of help and healing energy. So, I am once again indebted to all of you for the humanity you share with me and with each other in this very un-human virtual environment that we have turned into a special place of sharing and concern.

So... Thank You.

Georgia Jones, Editor