

THIS MONTH:

Poetry Corner

I Remember

a July afternoon
a hillside
sky blue close
earth baked
fresh golden served up
smelling green and ochre cool beneath
berry brown bodies on grass arms spread wide
stretched til only
fingertips touch
as we call out
scenes imagined
in clouds that float aimlessly
above

Georgia Jones from her new book Memorable Seasons